THE PURPOSE

At a time when the negative, such as crime, murder and drug abuse schools makes the headlines, the NCFJE set out to identify the vast good so inherent in our youth and help the wider community appreciate it. With one voice, business, government and community leaders come together, each year, to honor and thank outstanding teenagers for their significant achievement, excellence, effectiveness and creativity as positive role models. Their good deeds, kindness and generous demeanor are to be an inspiring example to their peers and the community at large.

NOMINATION FOR AWARDS

Nominations of deserving students for consideration of the GOOD DEED AWARDS are welcome from anyone concerned with the future of our youth. We encourage nominations from educators, teachers, school principals, clergy, community leaders and professionals of all religious denominations and institutional frameworks.

The Awards are open to all teenagers regardless of race, color, religion or affiliation.
